No. 2

REVIEW OF THE MONTH

The principal development affecting the banking situation in January was the enactment of legislation creating the Reconstruction Reconstruction Finance Cor-Finance Corporation poration with a capital of $500,000,000. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, designed principally "to provide emergency financing facilities for financial institutions," and "to aid in financing agriculture, industry, and commerce," was approved by the President on January 22, 1932. In announcing his approval the President said of the new corporation:

"It brings into being a powerful organization with adequate resources, able to strengthen weaknesses that may develop in our credit, banking, and railway structure in order to permit business and industry to carry on normal activities free from the fear of unexpected shocks and retarding influences.

"Its purpose is to stop deflation in agriculture and industry and thus to increase employment by the restoration of men to their normal jobs. It is not created for the aid of big industries and big banks. Such institutions are amply able to take care of themselves.

"It is created for the support of the smaller banks and financial institutions, and through rendering their resources liquid to give renewed support to business, industry, and agriculture. It should give opportunity to mobilize the gigantic strength of our country for recovery."

In addition to its capital of $500,000,000 subscribed by the United States Treasury, the corporation may obtain other funds up to $1,500,000,000 by the issue of its own notes, debentures, bonds, or other obligations, which gives it potential resources of $2,000,000,000. The obligations of the corporation must mature within not more than five years of date of issue and will be fully and unconditionally guaranteed by the United States, both as to principal purchase any of these obligations, and at any time to sell any of them. The obligations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are not eligible for discount or purchase by the Federal reserve banks.

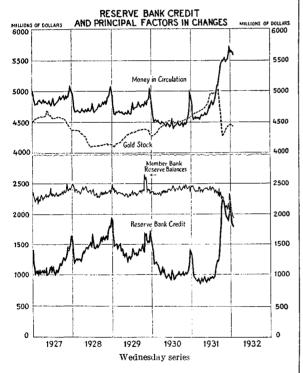

Loans may be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to banks-including, up to $200,000,000 in the aggregate, loans secured by the assets of banks that have been closed or are in process of liquidation; to other specified kinds of financial institutions-of which certain agricultural credit institutions are among those specifically enumerated; and to railroads, upon the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. In addition, the Act requires that certain funds be allocated and made available to the Secretary of Agriculture, to be used by him for the purpose of making loans to farmers. The loans to be made by the corporation must be "fully and adequately secured" and may bear such rates of interest as the corporation may determine. Thev may be made for periods not exceeding three years, and may be renewed from time to time, but the time for payment can not be exceeded beyond five years from the date of the original The full text of the Reconstruction loan. Finance Corporation Act is printed at the end of this review.

The board of directors of the corporation consists of seven members, of whom three are members ex officio-the Secretary of the Treasury or in his absence the Under Secretary of the Treasury, the governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and the farm loan commissioner-and four are members appointed by the President of the United States, with the advice and consent of the Senate. For these four directorships the President named Charles G. Dawes, of Illinois; Jesse H. Jones of Texas; Harvey C. Couch, of Arkansas; and Wilson and interest. The Treasury is authorized to McCarthy, of Utah. The organization of the corporation was proceeding rapidly at the end of January with a view to beginning operations at the earliest possible moment.

The volume of reserve bank credit outstanding decreased in January by an amount much

Reserve bank credit and the demand for currency n January by an amount much smaller than is usual for the season; on January 27 it was $200,000,000 less than five weeks earlier. In the corresponding period of other recent years the decline in reserve bank credit has been $400,000,000 to $500,000,000, reflecting largely the return of currency to the banks after the holiday season. The fact that the amount of currency returned from circulation this year between December 23 and January 27 was so far below the usual amount reflects the continued influence of nonseasonal factors.

The decrease of $200,000,000 in reserve bank credit during this 5-week period represented, in addition to the return of currency, a further decrease of about $55,000,000 in member bank reserve balances, resulting from further declines in member bank deposits and a further reduction in the balances held with the reserve banks by their foreign correspondents. The system's holdings of acceptances declined by $95,000,000 and member bank borrowings at the reserve banks by $70,000,000.

The course of reserve bank credit and of the principal factors in changes in its volume is shown by weeks for the period January, 1927 to January, 1932, on the chart.

Volume of member bank credit outstanding declined further in January. At member banks

Member bank credit in leading cities the decrease in loans and investments amounted to $550.000.000, reflecting a decrease of $300,000,000 in their investments and $250,000,000 in their loans secured by stocks and bonds. This decline followed a reduction of loans and investments in the last quarter of 1931, amounting to $1,500,000,000 at member banks in leading cities and to $1,000,000,000 at other member banks.

The accompanying chart, based on quarterly figures for all member banks, shows the course of member bank credit since 1919. Separate lines are shown for total loaps and for investments, and for the more recent period for loans to customers and open-market loans. Reduction of member bank credit has been under way since late in 1929, and for the two years ending September, 1931, total loans and investments showed a decrease of $2,800,000,000, or at an average rate of 4 per cent per year. In the last quarter of 1931, however, there was a further reduction about equal in amount to the full decline in the preceding two years and larger than the postwar liquidation in loans and investments, which took place between November 15, 1920, and March 10, 1922. Both in 1930 and in 1931 the largest declines were in loans to customers. Open-market loans, after increasing by $850,000,000 in the first quarter of 1930, declined by $2,200,000,000 from that time to the end of 1931, the larger part of this decline being in loans to brokers. In 1930 and until the autumn of 1931 the banks increased their investments in the total amount of $2,500,-000,000, but in the last three months of the year investment holdings of the banks declined by $850,000,000.

The only class of member bank loans to show an increase during the last quarter of 1931 consisted of loans to banks, which increased by $200,000,000 and stood at $800,000,000 on December 31. This increase reflected the disturbed state of banking conditions, which caused many member and nonmember banks to borrow from their banking correspondents in the larger cities.

Decreases during the quarter in loans and investments other than interbank loans were particularly large at banks in central reserve and reserve cities. This is in contrast to developments during the two preceding years, when credit liquidation was more pronounced at so-called country banks. The table shows that during the two years following October 4, 1929, total loans and investments of central reserve and reserve city banks—exclusive of interbank loans—declined by 4 per cent, while those of "country" banks declined by 15 per cent. In the final quarter of 1931, however, there was a further decrease of 9 per cent at central reserve and reserve city banks as compared with 7 per cent at "country" banks.

The earlier and more rapid decline of bank credit at "country" banks reflected primarily conditions in agriculture that were unfavorable both for borrowers at banks and for the banks themselves. This is illustrated in the chart, which compares for the period 1923-1931 the course of deposits at country banks in the smaller centers of 21 predominantly agricultural States with an index of the prices of farm products. Up to 1929 the price index of farm products was relatively more stable and deposits at agricultural banks fluctuated seasonally at a stable level, rising during the autumn months of the year when a large proportion of agricultural products are marketed and declining during the spring as agricultural producers draw down their deposits for current expenses when the balance of payments with nonagricultural regions is adverse. During more recent years, however, the drastic decline in prices of farm products has reduced the income of agricultural producers to progressively lower levels, and these producers, in the absence of a corresponding decline in their outpayments to nonagricultural localities, have been forced to draw heavily on their deposits at country banks.

Member banks in towns with a population of less than 15,000, located in 21 agricultural States; prices of farm products at the farm, index of the Department of Agriculture (August, 1909-July, 1914=100).

To meet these conditions country banks have drawn on their deposits in other banks and also have liquidated their loans and investments. The following table shows that openmarket loans of country member banks, which are generally in relatively small volume, have been reduced to negligible proportions, and their loans to customers have also greatly declined. Holdings of investments at country banks, on the other hand, have shown a relatively smaller decrease and in 1931 have also shown a shift from corporate securities to United States Government obligations.

The rapid liquidation of credit at city banks, which characterized the final quarter of the year, extended to all types of loans and investments except interbank loans. The table shows that during the two years from the peak on October 4, 1929, to September 29, 1931, city bank customers liquidated their loans and the banks placed the proceeds mainly in securities and in open-market loans. The increase was substantial in Government securities, in other investment securities, and in open-market loans other than street loans. Street loans of city banks, however, decreased during this period, owing to an absence of demand for funds in the call-loan market and to the decline in prices of securities. During the last quarter of 1931, on the other hand, all types of loans and investments other than interbank loans declined. The decline was most marked, however, in open-market loans and in investments and least marked in customers' loans, indicating that city banks as a whole met the greater portion of the decline in their deposits by liquidating open-market loans and investments.

There were substantial additions during the past month to the gold reserves of France and Gold reserves in Europe Switzerland. In part the gold was drawn from the United States, Netherlands, and Germany; but considerable amounts were also obtained by the purchase in London of gold from South Africa and India. For some time the people of India have been drawing on the large store of savings held by them in the form of gold. Beginning in March, 1931, the movement was at the outset a reflection of poor markets for Indian crops and the spread of depression in India, but after India's suspension of the gold standard in September the movement was greatly intensified by the sharp rise in rupee prices for gold. The gold purchased from the people of India since September has been shipped in large part to London, where it has enabled the Indian Government to make sterling payments without drawing, as hitherto, upon its currency reserves. Most of this gold as well as the output of the South African mines has been purchased by the Bank of France.

At the Bank of England during January bankers' deposits were reduced from the high level to which, in anticipation Bank of England of year-end statements, they had been raised at the end of December. During the same period there was a seasonal return of notes from circulation, although the return, like the Christmas expansion, was not so large as in other recent years. The funds released from bankers' deposits and from circulation were transferred in part to account of the Government, which was building up its deposits at the Bank of England in January out of first-of-year tax receipts, and were in larger part absorbed by the reduction of the bank's holdings of open-market securities.

Enough remained, however, to enable the market to pay off the year-end increase in its indebtedness at the bank. Market indebtedness returned to the level which has characterized the period since England suspended the gold standard; and as bankers' balances have continued to be large, there has been a tendency for money rates to become easier in the open market, with the rate on prime 3-month bank bills in the last week of January ruling about three-fourths of 1 per cent below the Bank of England rate.

Gold at the Bank of France increased by 2,200,000,000 francs ($85,000,000) in the four weeks ending January 22, and Bank of France foreign exchange holdings declined by 2,000,000,000 francs. During the 2year period ending with May, 1929, the gold movement to France had represented direct purchases of gold by the Bank of France, but | their slow, but almost uninterrupted, decline.

during the subsequent two years the bank made no further large purchases of foreign exchange, maintaining its holdings at a level of about 25,000,000,000 francs ($1,000,000,000), and did

In recent weeks the Bank of France once more has converted a considerable amount of its foreign exchange holdings into gold.

Government deposits at the Bank of France were again reduced and discounts and advances of the bank were paid off in corresponding amount.

NATIONAL SUMMARY OF BUSINESS CONDITIONS

[Compiled January 25 and released for publication January 27]

Industrial activity declined from November to December by slightly more than the usual seasonal amount, while the volume of factory employment showed about the usual decrease. Wholesale prices declined further.

Production and employment.--Volume of industrial output decreased somewhat more than is usual in December, and the board's seasonally adjusted index declined from 72 per cent of the 1923-1925 average in November to 71 per cent in December. Activity in the steel industry decreased from 30 to 24 per cent of capacity for the month, partly as a result of seasonal influences; in the first three weeks of January it showed a seasonal increase. Automobile output increased considerably in December from the extreme low level of the preceding month, and daily average output at shoe factories, which ordinarily declines at this season, showed little change. At textile mills production was curtailed by more than the usual seasonal amount.

Number employed at factories decreased seasonally from the middle of November to the middle of December. In the automobile and shoe industries there were large increases in employment, while in the clothing industries employment declined; in most lines, however, changes were of a seasonal character.

For the year 1931 as a whole the average volume of industrial production was about 16 per cent smaller than in 1930, reflecting large decreases in output of steel, automobiles, and building materials, offset in part by slight increases in production of textiles and shoes.

Value of building contracts awarded, as reported by the F. W. Dodge Corporation, declined considerably more than is usual from the third to the fourth quarter, and for the year as a whole was 32 per cent smaller than in 1930, reflecting reduced physical volume of construction, as well as lower building costs.

Distribution.—Distribution of commodities by rail declined by the usual seasonal amount in December, and department-store sales increased by approximately the usual amount.

creased by approximately the usual amount. Foreign trade.—Value of foreign trade continued at a low level in December, and for the year as a whole exports showed a decline of 37 year, reflecting a rise in bond prices.

per cent from 1930 and imports a decline of 32 per cent, reflecting in part the reduction in prices.

Wholesale prices.—Wholesale prices of commodities declined from 68 per cent of the 1926 average in November to 66 per cent in December, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, reflecting decreases in the prices of many domestic agricultural products, sugar, silk, iron and steel, and petroleum products. During the first half of January prices of hogs, lard, and butter declined further, while prices of cotton, silk, coffee, and copper increased.

Bank credit.—Reserve bank credit, which had declined from the middle of October to the middle of December and had increased in the latter part of the month, declined again in the first three weeks in January.

The growth in the latter part of December reflected a somewhat more-than-seasonal increase in the demand for currency, partly offset by reductions in member bank reserve balances and in deposits of foreign central banks. In January the return flow of currency was considerably smaller than in other recent years, while member bank reserve balances continued to decline. Acceptance holdings of the reserve banks, which had reached a total of $780,000,000 in October, have declined through maturing of bills held almost uninterruptedly since that time, and on January 20 totaled $190,000,000. The banks' portfolio of United States Government securities showed some increase over the level of the early part of December, and discounts for member banks increased substantially.

Loans and investments of member banks in leading cities declined further during December and the first two weeks of January, reflecting reductions in loans on securities, as well as in other loans, and in investments.

In the middle of January buying rates for bankers' acceptances at the Federal reserve banks were reduced, and open-market rates on 90-day bills declined first from 3 to 2% per cent and later to 2% per cent. Yields of high-grade bonds, after advancing for a period of about four months, declined after the turn of the year, reflecting a rise in bond prices.

<sup>1</sup> Gold released from earmark at Federal reserve banks less gold placed under earmark. <sup>3</sup> This figure, derived from preceding columns, represents the excess of domestic production over nonmonetary consumption of gold—chiefly consumption in the arts. In any given month, however, it may be predominantly affected by the fact that on the final day of the month (a) gold bullion or fore'gn gold coin recently imported may not yet have reached a reserve bank or the Treasury, and (b) gold bullion recently withdrawn from stock for export may not yet have been actually er-ported. The figures are subject to certain unavoidable inaccuracies in official reports of gold imports and exports. * Preliminary figures.

Note.—Figures relate to rates charged by reporting banks to their own customers as distinguished from open-market rates (which are given in preceding table). All averages are based on rates reported for 3 types of customer loans—commercial loans, and demand and time loans on securities. The method of computing the averages takes into account (a) the relative importance of each of these 3 types of loans and (b) the relative importance of each reporting bank, as measured by total loans. In the two group averages the average rate for each city included is weighted according to the importance of that city in the group, as measured by the loans of all banks in the city. "Revised. <sup>2</sup> Includes also lead and zinc, see "Minerals."

NOTE.—The combined index of industrial production is computed from figures for 57 statistical series (49 of manufactures and 8 of minerals) most of which are shown in this table. Adjustments have been made in the different industries for the varying number of working days in each month and for customary seasonal variations, and the individual products and industries have been weighted in accordance with their relative importance. The sources of data and methods of construction were described in the BULLETIN for February and March, 1927.
